

Rivera Household, 7-Day Meal Plan

Week of 2026-06-08. Sunday meal prep. Family of 3: Alex (protein ~150g/day, lower saturated fat for August LDL recheck), Jordan (vegetarian-leaning), Maya (age 6, pasta yes, spicy no).

Day	Breakfast	Lunch	Dinner (family, with swaps)	Alex protein
Sun	Greek yogurt, berries, oats	Turkey + hummus wraps	Sheet-pan salmon, veg, rice / Maya: plain salmon + rice	~125g
Mon	Eggs, toast, banana	Chicken burrito bowl (beans, rice)	Turkey chili + cornbread / Jordan: veggie chili / Maya: plain pasta	~150g (training)
Tue	Overnight oats + PB	Lentil veggie soup + bread	Tofu veggie stir-fry + rice / Maya: plain noodles + edamame	~115g (swim night)
Wed	Veggie omelet + toast	Chicken + quinoa salad	Pasta + turkey meatballs / Jordan: lentil meatballs / Maya: plain pasta + 1 meatball	~150g (training)
Thu	Protein smoothie (oats, berries)	Hummus + chicken bowl	Black bean + sweet potato tacos / Maya: plain bean + cheese taco	~120g (swim night)
Fri	Eggs + oatmeal	Tuna + white bean salad	Eat out: grilled chicken bowls / Maya: cheese pizza	~110g
Sat	Oatmeal, banana, eggs (pre long run)	Chicken + rice bowl (post-run refuel)	Lean bean + beef chili + salad / Jordan: all-bean / Maya: plain pasta	~150g (long run)

Notes

- Cook-once strategy: each dinner has a flex exit so Alex, Jordan, and Maya all eat from one base.
- Alex reaches ~150g on training days by stacking protein across breakfast, lunch, a post-workout shake, and dinner.
- Lower saturated fat (salmon, turkey, beans, tofu) and soluble fiber (oats, beans, lentils, apples) support the August LDL recheck.
- Tuesday and Thursday are swim and camp nights: keep them as quick reheats from Sunday prep.
- Maya stays in the pasta, plain-protein, and cheese lane with nothing spicy.

Synthetic sample data for demo purposes. Not nutritional or medical advice.